

Privacy Policy

You can visit this website anonymously. Lambrechts-group respects the privacy of the users of its website. Data on you or your computer shall not be collected nor processed by Lambrechts-group in any other way than indicated below. In any case, your data will be used solely within Lambrechts-group and will not be transferred or sold to any third parties or divulged to third parties, except if this would be required to meet your request, required by law or if we would be obliged thereto, pursuant to a court decision or arbitration award.

If you contact us using this website, you will be asked to enter your name, e-mail and other complementary information. Furthermore, we are of course interested in statistical data providing information on the success of our website, for example: how many visitors do we have on a monthly basis; from which countries people are visiting our website; which pages are most popular? To this effect, we will register your IP address and domain name. And in order to adjust the facilities and functions to the user's equipment, we also record which type of browser you use to visit our website.

In any case, the information we request, shall be relevant and not excessive, in terms of the above described purposes for which it is obtained or for which it is processed. In no case whatsoever information will be requested stating the racial or ethnical origin, the political beliefs, the religious or philosophical views or affiliation to a trade union, nor any data relating to the sexual life. In case you provide this sensitive information, this is deemed to constitute an express consent to the use of this information, for the purposes for which you have provided the information. This information will furthermore be saved no longer than reasonably necessary for the realization of the purposes as described hereinabove.

Lambrechts-group highly values your opinion and any suggestions you may have regarding our website. If you have any questions, comments or suggestions, you can give us a call dialling +32 3 886 79 65 or send an e-mail to info@lambrechts-group.be